Uninstalled the. 2009)Back on the Street It was a sunny November afternoon and my friend and I were on our way to the 7-Eleven. We had decided to leave earlier, and so were now feeling the cold breeze. I had the window down and was listening to Emancipated Child's song "Lucy". We had stopped at the house to get the car, and so had left most of our stuff in the box. We turned into the alley, but I didn't need to turn around to see what the problem was. A car had parked in the alleyway and was not going anywhere. We were slightly confused as to why it was there, but concluded that perhaps the owner didn't want to park in front of their house? We walked towards the car, but weren't a bit concerned. The driver wasn't sitting in the car, so we continued to approach. The driver started to get out, and said "its OK, she's just drunk as hell." As he started to pull her out of the car, the owner of the vehicle came from the house and said "What are you doing?" "She's just drunk and stuck in the car," he told her as he got in to help. I walked up to the car to make sure she was ok and saw that her seat belt was released, so I quickly redid it. The owner asked "Are you OK?" and she said "Yeah, I'm fine." As he walked her towards the house, we turned back to my friend and I, and we said "guess she's alright" - neither of us being overly concerned. Within minutes the owner returned, and we asked "Oh, she's alright, right?" "You could have been raped!" he yelled at us. "I was just trying to help her" and laughed. We were stunned. "Raped?!!!!..
